A complete house distributed over 3 floors plus a vaulted basement, a terrace with skylight, from where the harbour was watched over in the past, and a large patio with barbecue area that floods the whole house with light.

The house has been tastefully renovated without losing any of its original spirit.

We are welcomed by an elegant entrance hall with sprouting arches that give way to a wrought iron staircase that forms the epicentre of the house and that is flooded with light through the skylight that crowns the house. On the ground floor there is a beautiful kitchen and a large dining room with stained glass windows that connect with the courtyard. Next comes an elegant living room with a fireplace, 5 spacious bedrooms, 4 bathrooms and a cloakroom.

There is no lack of comfort such as air-conditioning.

Numerous details and finishes and classic carpentry of British influence, very typical of the stately houses of Mahón from the beginning of the 20th century.
